“ To Christian and the Caampued Family,

When I first heard that Marlon had passed away on Wednesday, I found myself sitting in stunned silence. It didn't seem real—how someone so young, full of life, laughter, and quiet kindness could be gone so suddenly. My heart broke not only for the loss I felt but for Christian, the children, and the whole Caampued family, who must now walk through a valley no one ever chooses.

Moments like this stop time. The world feels shattered, and even breathing feels heavy. And yet, in the stillness, something sacred begins to stir—a gentle reminder that love does not end when a life ends. Love gathers. It gathers through memories, through the comforting words of friends, and through the ache that somehow becomes our way of remembering how deeply we cared.

To help honor that love, I've created a memorial website—a place where friends and family can leave stories, memories, and prayers for Marlon. Each message, each name written there, is written in love and is a thread in the fabric of support surrounding your family. These words come from hearts joined together, grieving with you, loving you, and reminding you that you're not alone and have a strong support system who is there for you.

Though it feels impossible now, light will find its way through the cracks of this heartbreak. And when it does, it will carry with it the love of all who knew Marlon—a love that endures, even through tears.

With compassion and prayer,

Chaplain Roger Rustad and The Aegis Hospice Team
