“ I think Vivian gamble often. She was the happiest woman. So full of English charm, and so open to new ideas. She was always in a celebratory mood. I took a 2 hour train ride in England to try her Shepard’s pie and have a visit. When she moved to California I was thrilled. She moved into the neighborhood where my grandmother lived. I thought perhaps they’d be friends but Vivian was too hip and adventurous for my lil or Grammy Jane to keep up with. Personally I think she was jealous of Vivian. She was a woman of the world with class and culture. Farewell Vivian Gamble. Onto another adventure.
